The North Carolina Science Teachers Association (NCSTA) is an educational organization designed to promote excellence in the teaching and learning of science. A trust fund has been established to provide financial stability for the organization and to assist the organization in developing new initiatives and program expansion. NCSTA is seeking funds to provide more opportunities for science teachers to participate in professional development activities that will improve science instruction. Additional funds will be used to inform members of new and innovative science knowledge through nationally and internationally recognized presenters at the annual Institute. Additional funds will allow NCSTA to keep costs for organizational membership at a rate within the reach of educators.

Thank you for making a generous tax deductible donation to NCSTA. Donations may be made in memory or in honor of NCSTA members or any other persons. Families of those who are memorialized will be notified of donations; honorees will be notified of donations. The names of the donors will be listed in the NCSTA newsletter, The Science Reflector, and in the program publication of the annual Professional Development Institute Conference. Multiple donations will be added together to reflect the donor's annual level of giving.

Become a "Metal" donor by indicating the level of support at which you will give.
